TRADE AND LABOR.

is plain enough to those who have read the story of the United States Shipbuilding Company and kindred organizations that our so-called captains of industry are most largely responsible for the slump in the prices of securities and the consequent set-back to the phenomenal prosperity which this country was enjoying. The responsibility has been clearly proven against them, and they cannot escape it. Some of them have been trying to shift their responsibility upon the labor organizations, but they cannot do so. They are to blame, and they must suffer the consequences.

Yet it is but too true, as we have recently been endeavoring to show, that the labor organizations are not without blame. By unreasonable demands, by strikes, by unwise use of their powers, they have undoubtedly embarrassed certain lines of industry, especially the iron trade, and there is apprehension now in various quarters that there is more trouble ahead from this source. The New York Journal of Commerce has interviewed leading bankers in New York city, who are generally agreed on these two points: First, that the worst of the Wall Street liquidation is over, and, secondly, that the labor situation, especially in view of the approach of the Presidential election year, is a factor to be considered in connection with any recovery in the general price of securities. The Journal of Commerce. in commenting on these views, says that if labor combinations continue to act with a blind disregard of their own interests, which are necessarily bound up with those of the commercial, as well as those of the industrial, community, they may inflict serious disasters upon the coun-

The Washington correspondent of the same paper says that the danger to the crops is now past, and that a fairly good crop is assured in most of the corn-producing States, while the other grain crops and the cotton crop are safe. But the correspondent proceeds to say that the most disquieting feature of the present situation is the apprehension of unwise action on the part of organized labor.

nction on the part of organized labor.

"This is a matter," he goes on, "about which officials who are generally politicians with an eye to the labor vote have little to say, yet it is causing much anxiety. The lack of wisdom that characterizes some of the leaders of trades unions has been forcibly illustrated by the tying up of the building trades in different parts of the country. Aside from the stoppage of work by strikes, the effect of the high scale of wages that has been secured by the workmen in the building trades has been to cause the postponement of the many undertakings that would otherwise have been underway at present.

"On top of this came strikes, extortion and blackmail, and building projects

"On top of this came strikes, extortion and blackmail, and building projects throughout the country in very large numbers have been abandoned or postponed. This, in turn, has affected the structural steel industry disastrously, as has been evidenced by the decreased earnings of the manufacturers and the closing down of some of the least economical plants. The result is that the workmen in one industry are thrown out of employment by the intemperate and unwise action of the workmen who handle the material manufactured by the first, and the second are themselves deprived of their wages by their action in making demands that result in the curtailment of industry in their line." industry in their line.

With the factories all full of orders; with railroads taxed to their utmost capacity to handle traffic; with everything booming, it was but natural that the lashould demand a fair participation in the prosperity of the country. But with conditions changed; with a decreasing demand for manufactured products; with know what ought to be done to stop deconfidence in financial circles more or less shaken; with shops shut down; with It is a puzzling question, but we suggest railronds reducing expenses and discharg-ing hands, sensible laboring men must in their own interests be more conservative in their demands, and exert them selves with others to restore confidence and to prevent disasters which threaten

Laboring men cannot afford to separate themselves into a class and antagparcel of the commercial and industrial system; they are partners in the concerns for which they work, and there must be co-operation between employer and employe, if the business of the country is to go on uninterrupted and prosperity to

BERROWSHILL "MY MARYLAND,"

The President undoubtedly is very deep. ly interested in the present political campaign in Maryland. In an interview that he had with a delegation of Maryland Republicans in Washington on Wednesday, he showed great concern as to the progress of the canvass in that state in Morints.

and unhesitatingly said he thought its result would have an important bearing upon the national campaign fiext year. At present his efforts are chiefly addressed to the work of healing the factional divisions which exist in the party. There are several candidates for the seat in the United States Senate now held by Mr. McComas, and the President fears the full vote of his party will not be polled unless the jealousy and animosity which now exist among those partisans can be removd. The President has allowed himself to be quoted freely by newspaper correspondents with respect to his feelings on the subject of the Maryland contest. He also spoke to Senator McComas, who aspires to be the Republican boss in Maryland, in language that cannot be mistaken

Said the President to Mr. McComas, "I am neither for nor against you. I have no candidate for the United States Senate. I favor no man's candidate, and for any man to create the impression that I am for or against him is for that man to make a mistake."

The President is reported to have told Mr. McComas in so many words that he expected him to bury all personal feelings, and to work for the good of the legislative and gubernatorial tickets regardless of any prejudices that exist.

The intense interest shown by the Presi dent in the Maryland struggle is proof that he does not believe the Republicans are going to have a "walk over" next year. He has plainly said that for the Republicans to lose Maryland this year would be a damper upon the national campaign in 1904.

Of all the elections to be held in November, those in Maryland and New York excite the most interest among pollticians and the public. In the Empire State chief interest centers in the municipal elections in New York city, where as has been often told, a curious political complication exists,

SNAGGY PAVEMENTS.

The Municipal Assembly of St. Louis is much disgusted with the injury done good streets where gas or water mains, electric wires, sowers and street car tracks are laid. There, as in Richmond. the pavement is rarely repaired as well as it should be and could be. And so a law has been passed requiring an ample deposit from contractors or corporations as surety that the pavements will be relaid to the satisfaction of the city, and i specifies how the work shall be done.

Another piece of legislation proposed in St. Louis is for the protection of asphaltum street pavements. This bill is intended to prohibit drippings from oiltank wagons and automobiles.

There are some streets in Richmond that have suffered injuries from badly relaid granite spalls. And as time passes the roadway gets rougher and rougher If attention is not given them it will not be long before the greater part of the roadway will have to be repaired.

It is a pity that this deterioration should be allowed to go on. The only way to maintain good streets is to repair them just as soon as the need therefor

THE ROCKINGHAM CONTEST. Congressman Glass says that it would be a great mistake on the part of the people of Rockingham to fall to return Mr. Keezell to the Scnate. It would, indeed. Mr. Keezell is sensible, honest and patriotic. He has made a most useful member of the Senate, and his retirement would be a loss to the whole State.

General George B. McClellan was referred to by the President in his address made at the unveiling of the Sherman statue in Washington on Thursday.

After eulogizing a number of generals Sheridan, Thomas and others, and emphasizing each one's highest claim to great men, the President said, and-"Mc-Clellan, with his extraordinary gift for organization!"

GREENSBORO, N. C., Oct. 16.—The Southern Rallway Company has certainly won the plaudits of everybody here for the excellent manner in which the crowds to the reunion were handled, and especially passengers going to the Guilford battle ground last Tuesday. In addition to this, special excursion trains have been run from various localities every day of the week to the fair grounds.
Tens of thousands of people, men, women and children, have been transported, schedules have been perfect and not a single accident of any kind has occurred to person or property. The attendance at the fair, which closed to-day, has been something remarkable.

The entrance at the gate since the fair opened Tuesday afternoon up to last night were 25,000, an average of nearly 10,000 per day for three days, and to-day its estimated that faily 6,000 are present. The fair, like the reunion, has been an unqualified success in every respect, but the

CHILDREN'S DAY AT THE CARNIVAL

Afternoon of Enjoyment for Them at Broad-Street Park.

Park.

To-day is Children's Day at the Richmond Carnival at Base-Ball Park, and likewise the last day of the gala event. As it is a school holiday, the children of the city will have ample opportunity to visit the many attractions, and for a trifting amount they may have a whole afternoon of unalloyed entertainment of an educational character. The price of admission to the main gates and shows this afternoon for children under fifteen years of age will be but five cents. There will be many free acts besides, including the great Loop the Loop, than which no act is more sensational; Youturkey, on the signal programme has been arranged for the benefit of the children, and others at short intervals.

A special programme has been arranged for the benefit of the children, and they will be given free rides on the camels, donkeys and ponies on the midway. The shows are all strictly moral and high class, and the children can attend without their parents with perfect safety, as the numerous attendants of the shows will devote the entire afternoon to their care and pleasure.

This evening a great crowd is expected, and a big confettl battle has been arranged as the final fun-making event of the carnival. It has been the most successful ever held in this city, and has been attended by a vast number of people, all of whom have expressed themselves as much pleased with everything they saw.

gation will pull up stakes and leave for Raleigh, N. C., where it opened the season on May 4th last. The carnival there was such a grand success that the company was immediately contracted with to play a return date next week.

PRIMARY SYSTEM HAS COME TO STAY

The new State primary system has been the subject of a great deal of comment and discussion about the lobbies and other public harses during the Horse Show, and it seems to be the con-Horse Show, and it seems to be the concensus of opinion that it has come to and that it will hardly be erased from its platform. The best friends of the plan have come to see that its details are imperfect, but instead of repealing it, they propose to amend, and they declare with much confidence that the Gerald Massey was born at Tree, Hertfordshire, in 1825. He hegan work as a lad in a slik factory and early became the editor of The Spirit of Freedom. In the following year at the age of twenty-two he became one of the secretaries of the Christian Scetalias. In the same year he published his first volume of poems. Since then a later the cutting in socialism and spiritualism, and endeworing to for the first he one of the strongest poems written by Massey. He does not rank with the great writers, but he strives as in this poem to encourage those who are weary of life's long match.

H 01 ye who in a noble work Win scorp Win scorn, as flames draw air, And in the way where lions lurk God's image bravely bear; Oh! trouble-tried and torture torn, The kingliest kings are crowned with thern!

> Life's glory, like the bow in Heaven, Still springeth from the cloud; And soul ne'er soared the starry seven But pain's fire-chariot rode. They've battled best who've boldest borne. The kingliest kings are crowned with thorn!

> The martyr's fire crown on the brow Doth into glory burn; And tears that from love's torn heart flow To pearls of spirit turn. Our dearest hopes in pangs are born, The kingliest kings are crowned with thorn!

As beauty in death's cerement shrouds, And stars bejewel night, God-splendors live in dim heart-clouds, And suffering worketh might. The mirkest hour is mother of morn, The kingliest kings are crowned with thorn!

VETERANS TALKED ABOUT REUNION

was in the chair, and though living furthest from the piace of meeting, is one of the most regular attendants. Captain J. Taylor Stratton, adjutant, was also at his desk.

After the transaction of routine business the body dissolved itself for the informal discussion of the Grand Camp's reunion, to be held in Newport News the 28th, 20th and 30th of this month. While the camp will have its delegation there, a number based upon its numerical strength, the entire camp wants to go down on Thursday, the 20th, for the parade in the afternoon. Pickett Camp is also anxious to go. But it was stated at the meeting last night that the railroads had declined to make particularly inviting concessions, giving no cheaper rate than $2.25 for the round trip. Of course, at that figure, very few of the veterans can afford to go, just for one day. The camps were in hopes of getting the usual excursion rates of $1.

The veterans are of the opinion that if this inducement is offered by the railroads, either one of them, that for or five companies of the local militia, the veteran's camps and a number of others would certainly take advantage of it. rade in the afternoon. Pickett Camp in
